Why Do So Many Christians Feel Far from God?

New Book and Training on God's Lavish Love Offers Healing, Hope, and Lasting Transformation

Colorado Springs, CO — Many Christians believe in God's love intellectually—yet feel disconnected from Him, rather than feeling loved by Him. Emotional wounds, childhood abandonment, trauma, and profound loss often create invisible barriers that make intimacy with God feel unreachable—even for devoted believers.

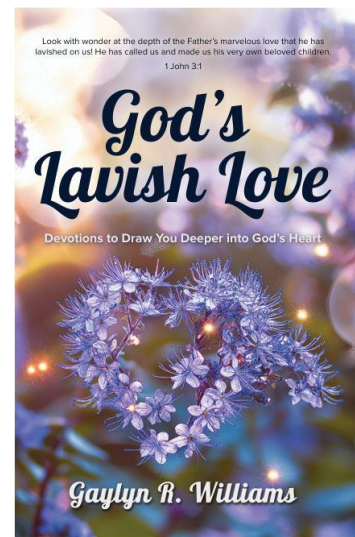

“People do not struggle to experience God's love because they lack faith,” Williams explains. “They struggle because unresolved pain distorts how love is received.” When those entrusted to provide love fail or abandon, even God's love can feel unsafe or distant. True healing begins when those wounds are brought into the light and met with God's truth, restoring the capacity to receive His love fully. The more we understand God's love for us, the more we can live out our identity in Christ.

Best-selling author of 42 books, including the 2025 Christian Living Book of the Year Award, Gaylyn Williams understands this struggle personally—and addresses it in her new book and training on God's Lavish Love. The result of not feeling loved by God is often loneliness, insecurity, shame, and a diminished sense of identity—issues that affect individuals and families. Gaylyn empowers people to grow in understanding God's love for them.

Williams' insight is forged through personal experience. As a child, she was abandoned by her parents in the name of God, leaving deep wounds around trust, worth, and love. In adulthood, she endured multiple devastating losses, including the deaths of her six-month-old son and later her fiancé, major personal betrayals, and more. These experiences profoundly shaped her spiritual journey—and ultimately her calling.

God's Lavish Love speaks directly to questions many are afraid to ask: Why don't I feel close to God anymore? Why do I still struggle with guilt or insecurity? If God loves me, why do I feel alone? Drawing on decades of experience equipping individuals, couples, and leaders, Williams invites her audience into a life-changing journey of healing and restoration through the truth of God's unconditional love.

Your audience will receive powerful free devotions on God's love following the interview.
